News From Around PA

Geisinger Health System, headquartered in Danville, announced on Wednesday that it will no longer consider applicants who smoke for employment. They will be tested for tobacco just as they are for illegal drugs. Smoking will cut six to seven years from the lifespan of the smoker, meaning a cigarette habit is less dangerous to human health and longevity than homosexual sex, which can shorten a 'gay' man's life by up to 20 years!

Pennsylvania abortions in 2010 totaled 36,778. This represents a decrease of 506 or 1.4 percent from the 37,284 that occurred in 2009. Residents of Philadelphia made up 14,731 or 41.8 percent of all abortions. Of the 2010 PA abortions, 97.7 percent occurred in eight counties — Allegheny, Berks, Bucks, Chester, Dauphin, Delaware, Lehigh and Philadelphia.

13 New laws in Pennsylvania include anything from returning possession of a road to a township, naming roads and bridges to regulating abortion clinics.

Philadelphia has highest per capita murder rate in US with it currently standing at 324. And homosexual activists still want to boot the Cradle of Liberty Scout Council and its Explorers Program out of Philly!

TD Bank held a celebration to recognize the launch of the first local LGBT Employee Resource Group. During the event TD announced it was giving a $3,000 contribution to the Philly William Way LGBT Center. Almost all of their 25,000 employees have already gone through LGBT-inclusive sensitivity training.

New from National Scene

Salvation Army - United States branch has quickly distanced itself from London-based international group's stand which allows for abortion in cases of rape, incest, fatal fetal abnormality, or if the life of the mother is threatened.

Amphibious landing ship

USS Oak Hill just returned to port after being out to sea for 80 days. The drawing for the 'coveted first kiss' was won by Petty Officer 2nd Class Marissa Gaeta. Upon reaching the pier she shared that kiss with her same-sex partner Petty Officer 3rd Class Citlalic Snell. They met as roommates during training
