News From Around PA University of Pennsylvania

held its Fifth Annual Pride Games on March 25th. "The goal is to increase acceptance of the LGBT (lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender/transsexual) community in sports."

The Open Door Club of Bucks County Community College is hosting its annual LGBT Prom on Friday, April 13 from 6 to 10 p.m. at the college's Gallagher Room (Newtown Campus). They say all BCCC students are invited to attend, as well as high school students and members of the public.

Luzerne County Council is reviewing a proposed ordinance establishing a personnel code for the county's new home-rule government. As part of that process they are looking at extending health benefits to "same-sex domestic partners" of county employees. Council Chairman Jim Bobeck supports such a move saying it will help "recruit better employees."

Green Valley Swimming Pool & Sports Club in West Manchester Township (York County) offers a discount to families. Recently they refused to offer the discount to a lesbian couple and "their" child.

New from National Scene

The Boycott List from Life Decisions International which identifies corporations that support Planned Parenthood reports that at least 282 corporations have stopped funding Planned Parenthood.

FDA-Approved experiments using brain tissue from aborted unborn babies to treat macular degeneration. StemCells Inc. will inject fetal brain stem cells into the eyes of up to 16 patients to study the cells' effect on vision.

Another Adult Stem Cell Success -- recently scientists grew a blood vessel in a little girl who needed one using stem cells from her own bone marrow.

The movie "Bully" which is being pushed by the homosexual groups Human Rights Campaign and GLAAD (Gay Lesbian Alliance Against Defamation) received an "R" rating from the MPAA because of the excessive use of the "F" word. The producers decided to proceed with its release as "Unrated" and it hit theaters March 30 without a rating. They want to make the 'documentary' available to schools nationwide.

Immigration - In 2010, about 3,500 LGBT refugees were resettled in the U.S. - including about 125 in Pennsylvania - and about 1,000 LGBT asylum seekers entered the country, the Heartland Alliance estimates. Did any of these test positive for HIV? It used to be against the law to admit someone who did.
