News From Around PA

On October 20, Arcadia University, in Glenside, will host the Family Matters Conference. However, this is not good news as it is sponsored by Philly Family Pride which is "dedicated to bringing together LGBT-headed families in the Philadelphia region."

HB 2691 was introduced on October 3rd by outgoing State Rep Babette Josephs. It is a bill which mimics California's recently passed law banning 'reparative therapy.' If passed, it would prevent parents from seeking help for a child who announces he is homosexual.

Philly City Councilman-at-Large Jim Kenney has falsely stated that Chick-fil-A has changed its policies and would no longer donate to pro-family groups and, according to Kenney, has added 'sexual orientation and gender' to its non-discrimination statement. However, Chick-fil-A has not changed its policies -- still believes in Biblical marriage and has said from the beginning they will treat each person with respect.

As part of the annual Outfest, Philadelphia held its first-ever leather and fetish street fair on October 7th. It featured live performances, "an open-air market full of leather/fetish exhibitors and vendors, games and a "leather bar."

A federal judge in Philadelphia considering the case of Jennifer Tobits — a lesbian who's seeking the death benefits of her deceased "spouse" — recently suspended the case indefinitely, pending the outcome of other relevant cases. It is presumed he is awaiting the US Supreme Court decision on the constitutionality of the Defense of Marriage Act.

News from National Scene

The number of plaintiffs in lawsuits against Obamacare reached over 100 this week. These include East Texas Baptist University, Houston Baptist University and Tyndale House Publishers.

Recently the Boy Scouts released a two-year study whose common-sense conclusion was that it's still not a good idea to put males who sexually desire other males into the Scouts as either role models or members. Homosexual activists and their allies in the media went ballistic!

AFA of PA encourages Christians, through education, to become involved in pro-family issues in their community, state and the nation.
