News From Around PA

Penn State has just announced that because of Governor Wolf's December 29th budget veto of the agricultural funding, they will soon be forced to close programs, laying off 1100 workers in the process.

A Delaware County woman who thinks she is a man is suing the PA Department of Human Services because the state's Medicaid program refuses to pay for a hysterectomy. She views this as a necessary "treatment" for her gender dysphoria.

Pittsburgh-based PNC Bank's political action committee donated $3000 to NJ Congressman Scott Garrett. Garden State Equality pressured them to stop contributing to him after Garrett said he would not contribute to the House Republican's financing arm because it backs homosexual candidates. The bank responded, "PNC and its PAC are committed to LGBT rights and always have been."

News from National Scene

The executive director of the US Election Assistance Commission told officials in AL, GA and KS they could require residents to provide proof of US citizenship when using federal forms to register to vote. Activists have asked a federal judge for a temporary restraining order to block the decision.

On this same note: A 2014 study by researchers at Virginia's Old Dominion and George Mason Universities found that "some non-citizens participate in U.S. elections, and that this participation has been large enough to change meaningful election outcomes including Electoral College votes, and Congressional elections."

Deerfield High School, near Chicago, quietly changed a multi-stall girls restroom into a co-ed restroom. Neither parents nor students were notified of this change to the secluded restroom. This facility isn't just for students confused about their sexuality; it is girls and boys to use at the same time!

Seattle Parks and Recreation reported a man undressed in a women's locker room at a local pool. Staff told the man to leave, but he cited the newly passed gender identity law stating he "had a right to be here."

President Obama has attached language in the 2017 Defense Dept. budget that states the U.S. Army will provide every soldier and civilian equal opportunities to rise to the level of their merit "regardless of their gender, their race, or their self-identity."
