News from Around PA

At the Bloomsburg Public Library (Columbia County), recently a mother reportedly blocked a man pretending to be a woman from entering the restroom while her 5-year-old daughter was inside. Shortly after the incident, Ammon Young, the library's Director, released a statement on Facebook appearing to defend and portray the man who attempted to enter the women's bathroom as a victim. The local paper, the Press Enterprise, then covered the story exposing the names of the mom and little girl, but not the name of the "transgender woman". Remember back on October 2020 the Bloomsburg Town Council added "sexual orientation and gender identity" to its non-discrimination ordinance. This is a natural result!

Professors registered as Democrats outnumber colleagues registered as Republicans by a 28 to one ratio in political science departments across six Pennsylvania universities: University of Pennsylvania, Temple University, Carnegie Mellon University, University of Pittsburgh, West Chester University, and Penn State University. At the University of Pennsylvania, Carnegie Mellon, Temple, and West Chester — zero registered Republican professors were found. At Penn State, one was identified. At the Univ. of Pittsburgh, two were found.

On November 18, Governor Josh Shapiro's Advisory Commission on LGBTQ Affairs is bringing the Pennsylvania drag community together for a virtual Drag Community Listening Session.

News from National Scene

The US Supreme Court has stopped the Bureau of Prisons proposed policy changes which would no longer allow inmates who identify as transgender access to surgical and hormone therapy treatments or "social accommodations," such as wigs, breast padding, binders, or makeup, but just to mental health services and medicines like antidepressants.

October is Down Syndrome Awareness Month. President Trump issued a message celebrating people with Down syndrome and the families who support them, calling every child "a gift from God.".

A conspiracy has been uncovered that arranged sham marriages between U.S. citizens and immigrants living illegally in the U.S. so the latter could obtain green cards and citizenship. For $38,000 to $40,000 per marriage, prosecutors say the operation arranged 18 to 20 sham marriages annually over the past 12 years.

DOJ is is suing Alaska to block certification of the state's U.S. Senate race because of the presence of two Dan Sullivans on the ballot. One, Dan J., is the GOP incumbent, while the other, Dan S., is running as an independent supported by liberal donations. They face former Democrat Rep. Mary Peltola.
