News From Around PA

The $26 million Flight 93 visitor center complex has opened. Development of the Flight 93 National Memorial is nearly complete, with only the planned Tower of Voices, a 93-foot structure with 40 wind chimes, still to be built. Great controversy surrounds this 2200 acre memorial whose design was originally called the Crescent of Embrace. Many believe the Tower of Voices can be seen as a sundial which would determine the times for daily Islamic prayers. Additionally, it has a near Mecca orientation. Because of this controversy, father of passenger Tom Burnett, Jr. has consistently asked that his son's name not appear anywhere in the memorial; however it does.

After rulings by the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission that workplace bias against homosexuals is a form of sex discrimination, there is a push to force the PA Human Relations Commission to investigate these type complaints. This ruling will also be used to advance the homosexual special rights bills SB 974 and HB 1510.

Franklin County State Rep. Paul Schemel has offered legislation that would defund Planned Parenthood in PA.

PA Bureau of Professional and Occupational Affairs fined the owner of Barbieri, a high end gentleman's barber shop in Washington, PA, $750 for refusing to cut a lady's hair. Crime: gender discrimination.

News from National Scene

Under pressure from human rights groups, the White House has announced it will take in at least 10,000 Syrians in 2016, beginning on the first of October. This will necessitate raising the US worldwide cap on refugees, which has been 70,000.

Lawmakers in California have approved right-to-die legislation in a move that will allow terminally ill patients to legally end their lives.

The Freedom From Religion Foundation has sent a report to public universities claiming that providing chaplains to their football teams is unconstitutional.

HHS has announced a new regulation that will require health insurers participating in Obamacare to cover more procedures sought by the transgendered.
