News from Around PA

In the North Allegheny School District in Pittsburgh, bus driver Erika Blumer decorates her school bus with trans propaganda. Why is she promoting the sexualization of children and why is the district okay with this?

In a push to “encourage PA high-school students to explore topics in LGBTQ+ history, the LGBT Center of Central PA History Project, the PA LGBT History Network and the Army Heritage Center Foundation co-sponsored the second annual Pennsylvania LGBTQ+ History Prize.” Three students from Carlisle Area High School won the prize.

“[W]e might be better off eliminating elections altogether,” argued Adam Grant, a psychologist at the University of Pennsylvania, in the piece, which subsequently had its headline changed from “Elections are Bad for Democracy” to “The Worst People Run for Office.”

Remember the recent stories about the Navy’s “digital ambassador” drag queen? Turns out “Harpy Daniels” is part of an entire family of drag queens hailing from PA’s coal country!

York City Council has voted to ban talk therapy for minors with unwanted same-sex attraction or gender confusion.

News From National Scene

Enis Sujak, a Christian Serbian immigrant who now lives in Florida, says he was terminated from his job working as a member of Best Buy’s Geek Squad in Jacksonville after speaking out against a mandatory training video on LGBT history.

The Indiana State Medical Association passed a resolution to “oppose medical and surgical gender transition treatment for minors”. It is the first mainstream medical association to challenge the American Medical Association’s position.

Oberlin College’s head women’s lacrosse coach, Kim Russell, has been “reassigned” to a desk job after she spoke out against allowing biological men to compete in women’s sports.

Second Baptist Church in Palermo, Maine is not afraid to let the community know they support life, displaying a sign that reads, “Every Life Matters,” and “Abortion is Still Murder.” Activists did not like the messages and, over the weekend, delivered their own after spray painting the church’s signs. Their messages were “Abortion is our Human right” and “Queer love 4 eva”.

President Biden Department of Homeland Security announced that the Sexual Minority Youth Assistance League had received a $530,000 Targeted Violence and Terrorism Prevention grant. The group distributes condoms and “sex education” material, to expand its “in-school support for LGBTQ+ youth” as young as age 6! We are a non-profit organization that is totally dependent upon financial gifts from our supporters. You can give online <https://afaofpa.org/donate/>
